

SMART SOLUTIONS FOR OFFICE HYGIENE

GOOD HYGIENE REDUCES ABSENTEEISM

Keyboards 'dirtier than a toilet'

Research has suggested that some computer keyboards harbour more harmful bacteria than a toilet seat. Consumer group Which? said tests at its London offices found equipment carrying bugs that could cause food poisoning. Out of 33 keyboards swabbed, 4 were regarded as a potential health hazard and one harboured five times more germs than one of the offices toilet seats!

A keyboard is often a reflection of what is in your nose and gut. Should somebody have a cold in your office, or even have gastroenteritis, you are very likely to pick it up from a keyboard.

Swishers Anti-microbial Treatment, known as SWAT, gives a thorough, even distribution of hospital-grade germicide in even the hardest to reach areas. The germicide is clinically shown to kill 99.9% of all common pathogens, including MRSA, cold & flu viruses, E-coli, Salmonella, Avian Flu more. Safe to use on furniture & electrical equipment. All that is required is for the equipment to be turned off until the service is complete.

Good hygiene is mission critical for any successful business today. That's because the proper practice of sanitation and a hand hygiene programme reduces absenteeism through sickness and increases productivity. Even the most spotless looking surface can harbour billions of microscopic threats - germs, viruses, bacteria and more. In today's modern office environment, central heating and air conditioning can be breeding grounds for a variety of common pathogens. Office furniture such as desks and telephones, and equipment such as photocopiers have a high touch rate that can be a perfect surface for germs to be transferred from person to person. You may not be able to see them, but they are there, which is why it is so important that you partner with a provider who has the tools, training and techniques to address these unseen dangers.
